MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

In July, Evolution Europe is up around 1%, compared to its benchmark at +3%. Among the worst performers, we can find Micro Focus, down around 6% after a sharp rally (+75%) from its lows and Ryanair (Ireland, airline, €15bn) down 10% - despite a decent earnings release, the recent strikes have weighted on the stock price. In our view, the additional costs linked to these strikes will be very manageable, especially when compared to the savings linked to the new planes that will be delivered soon. Our best performer this month is Schibsted (Norway, online classifieds, €7bn), which beat estimates and is up 15%.

The recent excellent earnings release by Schibsted, the global leader in the online classifieds industry, confirmed our investment case on the company. Indeed, after heavily investing for years, especially in countries in which the activity was early stage (and thus, loss-making), Schibsted is now proving it has the ability to strongly grow while normalizing its investment level. One of the strengths of Schibsted's business model is the operational leverage in the online classifieds segment, which means top line growth is extremely profitable. Thus, past investments in those new countries will in our view create a lot of value in the coming years. At the same time, the more mature markets are performing very strongly, with LeBonCoin growing 21% in France for example. We believe the company has strong drivers for EPS growth both in the short-term and the long-term.

We sold Bravida (Sweden, services, €1.3bn) after a mixed earnings release, locking in a 15% performance in around 9 months. Markets appear to be nervous and bad releases are heavily punished, and we took advantage of such opportunities at the beginning of August.
