MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

In February, macroeconomic statistics confirmed the last months good trend: a sustained growth in the US and an acceleration of the recovery in the eurozone. The distinct hike in labour costs in the USA worried the market which then anticipated an acceleration of inflation. This led to an increase in the US long-term interest rates (+15bps at 2.86%) and brought the question of a possible change in the pace of the FED's interest rate hikes. This strong jump in interest rates caused a volatility spike which surprised many investors and led to a market sell-off. In Europe, inflation fears are less pronounced for now and long-term interest rates decreased a little during the month (10-year OAT at 0.92%) and are still at historical low levels. The dollar stabilized against the euro (€/€ at 1.22) while the oil price (brent) lost 5% to 66$.

Credit market suffered from the comeback of risk aversion (Itraxx index at 52bps vs 44bps), especially for the high yield segment.

Stock markets fell as well (Eurostoxx: -3.9%) despite good annual results releases from companies because the strong outlooks published were sometimes already anticipated and fully priced.

In this backdrop, the fund Auris Selection Defensive was quite resilient and register a limited loss of -0.35% in February.

The fund continues to favour short maturities (especially in high yield) or specific securities (floating rate bonds, hybrids). During the month, the fund proceeded to some adjustments on the high yield segment (sale of Fiat 2018, strengthening of Picard TV 2023 and Novafives 2021). Exposure to legacy Tier 1 financial bonds has been reduced (trimmed position in BPCE 12.5% Perp and sale of Crédit Agricole 8.2% Perp) as the interest in these securities is now lower. Cash level is still historically high (21% of assets).

The fund has a yield to maturity of 2.3% for a sensitivity which stays low at 1.33. The weighted average rating is still BB+, one-step below the Investment Grade category.

Equity exposure is still very low at 1.7% of the portfolio (SQLI subscription rights were converted into stocks).

In the current environment where risk (credit and above all duration) looks sometimes poorly remunerated, the fund maintains its conservative positioning, with 41% of assets (including cash) which has a maturity of less than one year. The market correction observed this month was considered insufficient to reinvest more, in good conditions. Consequently, the fund keeps a defensive bias and will continue to build on thorough bond picking and active management of positions to deliver a steady performance associated with low volatility.
